Dancing in the street

Dancers and performers from 28 groups took part in this year's biggest ever Hackney Carnival, on 9 September

FLAGS, costumes and lashings of colour filled the streets of Hackney as a record 60,000 people partied under the September sun.

The crowds whooped and cheered as 1,000 performers in 28 groups from around the world – including Bolivia, Ghana and Senegal – shimmied around the borough, starting and finishing at Queensbridge Road, on 9 September. Lizards, lions, a huge snake and a Chinese dragon were part of the amazing costumes on display. Para-Carnival performers dressed as royalty, while Faggamuffin Bloc Party – the first carnival sound system run and curated by queer people of colour – joined six other systems in pumping out tunes. See pages 5-7.

Hackney Today is published by the London Borough of Hackney. It has a print run of 108,000 copies and is delivered free to every home and business in the borough. The Council uses it to communicate public service information to residents. It is published fortnightly in order to carry statutory advertising, such as planning and traffic notices, which is cheaper for the taxpayer than using another local paper. The law does not allow for statutory notices to be published solely online or in a less frequent publication.

The paper's official, door-to-door delivery is 91,762 copies per issue, Audit Bureau of Circulations (ABC)

Paid for advertising is carried in the paper to keep costs to a minimum. We reserve the right to refuse advertising. The products and services advertised in this paper do not carry the endorsement of Hackney Today or London Borough of Hackney

RESIDENTS' priorities will be put at the heart of the Council's work in Dalston as part of a major campaign to listen to their ambitions for the future of their community.

By taking part in the 'Dalston conversation', residents, businesses and visitors will be able to share what they love about the area, what they want to see improved and how they feel about the changes already happening.

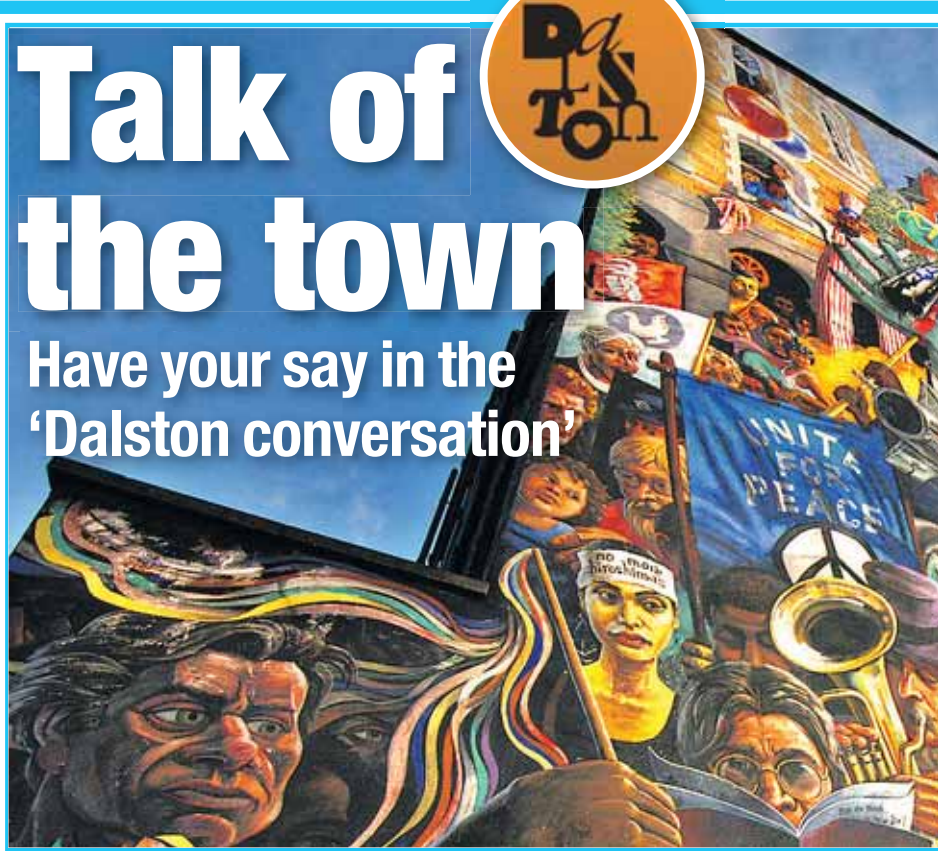

Dalston's population has gone up 12 per cent in just four years, and the prospect of Crossrail 2 – a proposed high-speed train line that would link the town centre directly to north, central and south-west London – means developers and landowners are likely to want to build more tall buildings in the town centre.

While some of these changes will be out of the Council's control, it wants to make sure it is using every tool at its disposal to maximise the benefits of growth and reflect the ambitions of Dalston's communities – whether that's having a say in what the town centre looks like in the future and what kind of buildings can be built, improving public spaces or ensuring everyone has access to new jobs, education or arts and culture opportunities.

The Mayor of Hackney,

Talk of the town

Have your say in the 'Dalston conversation'

The Council wants to make sure changes in Dalston maximise opportunities for all its communities

THE Council has pledged to:

- Protect and improve Ridley Road Market
- Be a champion for existing businesses and culture
- Secure the future of the Eastern Curve Garden
- Deliver affordable spaces for local businesses
- Be honest about plans for the future
- Use the feedback to shape change
- Keep and promote diverse shops, restaurants and nightlife.

Philip Glanville, said: "Hackney has seen huge change over the past 15 years, with massive investment bringing better education, more job opportunities, new businesses and a transformation in transport links.

"If Dalston is to remain a place that works for everyone, we need to hear the voices and views of everyone who lives, works and visits here so we can plan how to achieve their priorities. That's why we're taking a step back to start the 'Dalston conversation'.

"I'm determined that through this open and honest dialogue, we'll find out how we should approach change."

Anyone can have their say by speaking to Council officers at events across Dalston this autumn. Detailed workshops will follow later this year.

Hackney delivering genuinely affordable homes

NEARLY two-thirds of the hundreds of new homes delivered directly by the Council since 2010 are genuinely affordable, despite receiving little Government funding, new figures show.

Rather than selling off land to private developers, the Council has completed more than 550 homes at nine sites across the borough. Of these, 62 per cent are for social rent and shared ownership, with the rest for outright sale to help pay for them. All were directly built and funded by the Council, and will continue to be managed by it on Council-owned land.

The Council plans to more than triple this record in the next four years, delivering nearly 2,000 new Council homes, three schools and a new leisure centre – with over half of the new housing for social rent and shared ownership.

The Mayor of Hackney,

The building projects include homes in Ponsford Street, E9

Philip Glanville, said: "Despite ministers stumping up barely a penny, Hackney is building thousands of new Council homes for the people who need them, alongside first-class public facilities for their families."

In addition to homes delivered directly by the Council, it has worked with residents, Notting Hill Genesis and Berkeley Homes to enable 1,500 more homes to be built in the past six years through the regeneration of Woodberry Down.

Help improve West Reservoir

The project will look at ways to improve West Reservoir in Woodberry Down

THE Council, London Wildlife Trust and Greenwich Leisure Ltd have joined forces to find ways to open access and improve the environment at West Reservoir, in Woodberry Down.

The project is also looking at improving and introducing new activities at the reservoir. Residents are invited to share their ideas at a series of drop-in consultation sessions:

- Redmond Community Centre, Woodberry Down, N4, 25 September, 5-8pm
- West Reservoir Water Sports Centre, Green Lanes, N4, 26

September, 5-8pm

- Coal House Cafe, Woodberry Wetlands, N16, 4 October, 6.30-8.30pm.

Bishopsgate plans

FRESH plans for Bishopsgate Goodsyards are being put forward, two years after initial proposals for its major redevelopment were halted following calls for a rethink from the Council, residents and community groups.

Developers originally submitted an application in 2015, which would have seen the 11-acre site in the centre of Shoreditch become home to a series of large, primarily residential, towers, the tallest of which would have been 47 storeys (152m).

The Council campaigned against the proposals, arguing they would have had too great an impact on the area, caused unacceptable loss of light for nearby residents and businesses, didn't offer enough affordable homes or appropriate workspace, were of poor architectural quality and reduced air quality. Tower Hamlets Council was also against it.

Boris Johnson, the then Mayor of London, called in the scheme at the request of the developers to rule on it himself, but then deferred making the decision before leaving office in 2016, after which it didn't progress.

Now, following conversations with the councils and the Greater London Authority (GLA), the developers have returned to the table with draft proposals for a smaller development, on which they are starting public engagement.

The Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, said: "The Council has been discussing with the GLA, Tower Hamlets Council and the developers how they could work more collaboratively on changes to the original proposals for Bishopsgate Goodsyards.

"An approach has now been agreed, meaning all parties, alongside residents, businesses and interest groups, can start progressing together a significantly amended application more suitable to this important site in the heart of Shoreditch.

"Hopefully this approach will lead to a development which strikes a better balance between the need for new homes – including, crucially, genuinely affordable homes – business premises and affordable workspace, and protecting the area's culture, heritage, existing businesses and residents."

News in brief

Take a look at housing services

RESIDENTS who have a passion for improving the communities they live in are invited to sit on a panel that has direct influence on how housing services provided by the Council are run and delivered.

The role, in the Resident Liaison Group (RLG), means they will get to make a real impact on Council housing, estates and neighbourhoods by monitoring, evaluating, idea-sharing, and looking critically at what the Council is doing or proposing on all services affecting tenants and leaseholders.

The Council would like new recruits to not be linked to any tenant and resident association (TRA) or supported resident group. This is to get a wider perspective on the housing services it currently delivers. The deadline for applications is 14 November. For more information, or to sign up, visit: consultation.hackney.gov.uk

Victoria Ward by-election

THERE is a vacancy for a Councillor in Victoria Ward, following the resignation of Cllr Alex Kuye.

Anyone wishing to find out how to stand in the by-election – on 18 October – is invited to a meeting with Electoral Services in Room 108 at Hackney Town Hall on 10 September at 3pm, or 17 September at 6pm.

Nominations from candidates for this election will be accepted from 13 September until 4pm on 21 September.

The relevant forms are available from Hackney Town Hall.

The deadline to register to vote is midnight on 2 October. The postal vote application deadline is 5pm on 3 October. The proxy vote application deadline is 5pm on 10 October.

To book your place at a meeting, email: electoralservices@hackney.gov.uk

Volunteer for National Refill Day

HACKNEY is looking for volunteers to help mark National Refill Day on 27 September. They are being recruited to approach local businesses to ask them to agree to fill reusable water bottles. Volunteers will take part in a short, informal training session before heading out in pairs to explain the benefits.

In the UK alone, it is estimated that 800 plastic bottles per minute end up in landfill or as litter. If we continue to produce and throw away plastic at our current rate, by 2050 there will be more plastic in the ocean, by weight, than fish.

Businesses who commit to refill will be added to the Refill app – www.refill.org.uk/get-the-refill-app – and given a sticker to display in their window. The Council is working with Refill London, a City to Sea and Thames Water collaboration, to promote the scheme in the borough.

Volunteer to take part at:

Ace of bass

Hackney vibrated with the rumble of deep basslines as thousands partied around carnival's seven sound systems

The borough rocked to seven sound systems, including Faggamuffin Bloc Party in Hackney Central and Solution Sounds in Dalston during Hackney Carnival, on 9 September

HACKNEY Carnival presented its biggest line-up of sound systems ever, with seven sound stages – hosting a diverse roster of DJs – blaring out tunes across the borough.

New kids on the block Bradbury Street in Dalston, Faggamuffin Bloc Party in Hackney Central, and Dubson Sounds in Ridley Road drew the crowds with their rumbling basslines and booming beats, while Dalston old-timers Solution Sounds, First Class Sound and Sarge Singh, NTS Radio and Jah Prophecy continued the party with their laid-back roots, reggae and dub sounds.

Drum'n'bass favourites Brockie and Det made the crowd go wild with their old-school jump-up jungle set at Dubson Sounds, while Solution Sound System hosted the legendary Jah Observer for one day only, before he jetted back to Jamaica.

Down the road, at Bohemia Place, Faggamuffin Bloc Party made history as the carnival's first ever sound system run and curated by queer people of colour. The group's mission statement reads: "Faggamuffin Bloc Party's mission is to increase the visibility of queer, transgender and intersex people of colour pride at carnival.

"This space is about staking our claim to carnival, affirming our identities and showing pride in our visibility as queer people of colour in Hackney."

A massive crowd, crossing the boundaries of race, age, ethnicity and sex, descended on headliner Karnage, who played his signature grime set.

Also away from the main parade – but another highlight of the carnival programme – was the Gillett Square stage.

Twelve live acts took to the stage over the course of the day, playing everything from roots reggae and electric groove, to Soca and Afrobeat.

Legendary reggae star Earl 16 headlined, and got the crowd skanking with his infectious energy.

Party-goer Agrippa Goredema said: "I can't believe I have experienced this legendary reggae star for free in my own local community. I'm still excited!"

Other acts on the day included Brixton rock band Baytrees; Afrospot All Stars, playing the sounds of West Africa; and Hackney's own Belly to Belly sound system, playing late 1970s and early 1980s roots reggae on vinyl.

"It's lovely to see different cultures coming together and having an amazing time. My daughter's loving the Playbus activities."

Dean and Danielle Barker with Taylor-Mae

"I am a proud Trinidadian and I love coming to Hackney Carnival. There are no barriers, this is for all the community and it's wonderful to see everyone from babies to older people enjoying themselves."

Sheila Lakhan, Carnival Elders' Float

"This is my second year returning to the fabulous Hackney Carnival, I loved it so much last year I had to come back. I would like to say happy carnival to all of Hackney and hope they enjoy it as much as I do."

Shaun Carrington

"It's great to see people coming together and supporting Hackney as a community."

Hackney residents and visitors had lots of fun under the sun

OVER 60,000 party-goers headed to this year's Hackney Carnival on 9 September, which featured 28 parade groups, seven sound systems, a live stage, and two pop-up play areas.

The carnival groups – from as far afield as Bolivia and Senegal – excitedly began getting ready from midday, as the late summer sun shone brightly down on Haggerston Park.

It took some groups up to two hours to transform themselves in their resplendent costumes – complete with shimmering sequins, fluffy feather-boas and enormous headpieces.

Dancer Yvette, 49, said: "I'm very excited about today. I love celebrating and everyone being together. It's really nice to get the whole community together."

Lizards, lions, a huge snake and a Chinese dragon were part of the amazing array of costumes in the 1,000-strong procession that pulled out of Queensbridge Road at 2pm, snaking its way around Richmond Road to Hackney Town Hall Square – where the groups paused to show off their dynamic dance moves and colourful costumes in front of the judges – before heading down Amhurst Road to Dalston Lane.

As the carnival groups – inspired by the theme 'iconic Hackney' – danced past judges in Hackney Town Hall Square, there were extra big cheers for local groups such as Jamboulay,

28 groups took part in this year's Hackney Carnival from as far afield as Bolivia

"I feel lucky to have the carnival right on our doorstep. The sun is out and we are enjoying the day."

Michelle Lazurus-Brown, 57 & Everold Brown, 57

"It's my first time in Hackney Carnival and I'm part of the Heritage float today. I'm looking forward to going on the road to dance and show everyone how good we are – I'm also hoping to win today!"

"It's a wonderful day and the sun is shining. There is so much diversity in Hackney. This is such a great way to celebrate that."

Janet Williams, 62, Carnival Elders' Float

Elsa Perez, 83

GAHU Dramatics and Tropical Isles.

Jorge Gonzales, 65, said: "I have come down to carnival every year for a long time now since my children moved away. Every year I have seen the festival grow and more and more people come to Hackney to celebrate. I love it because it's a nice day with lots of friends and happiness – and I feel less lonely. I see my community together with nice vibes and nice smiles, and it makes me happy."

Pax Nindi, Creative Director of Hackney Carnival, added: "It's so exciting to see even more residents each year coming out to experience Hackney Carnival. The quality of the costumes, the colours are fantastic, the joy massive!"

Meanwhile, children and families were kept entertained at the free, pop-up play areas in both Gillett Square and Hackney Town Hall Square.

The Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Clare Potter, said: "Well done to everyone involved in the biggest Hackney Carnival of all time! What an amazing atmosphere, a fitting celebration of the borough's diverse community!"

Hackney Carnival is funded by the Council and Arts Council England. It is organised by the Council's culture team together with local carnival groups.

Hackney's best buildings throw open their doors for free on 22 to 23 September

NOW in its 27th year, Open House London has long been a highlight in the capital's diary; beloved by architecture fans for its opportunities to engage with some of the world's most daring designs and by us for the chance simply to snoop around in other people's homes.

Each year over 250,000 people take part in the Open House weekend, visiting over 800 buildings, walks, talks and tours across the capital. This year, Open House London takes place on 22 and 23 September.

Rory Olcayto, director of Open City, the charity which runs Open House, says: "From Hackney Wick to Park Royal, Wembley to Nine Elms, Open House is shining a light on the places shaping the capital with striking landmark buildings and new approaches to town planning.”

Festival organisers have focused on 'new London', those areas of the city that have been developed with startling speed over the last few years, using new methods in building and approaches to regeneration.

So the Here East tech hub in Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park is high on the billing, but so are some less obvious choices. From a special bathroom in Clapton to a curved concrete house with its own soundtrack, here are Hackney Today's picks:

UCL AT HERE EAST Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park, E20 3BS

UCL East will open its doors in 2021, with the aim of becoming 'a radical new model of how a university campus can be embedded in the local community and with businesses'. For the moment, six academic departments have a presence and are opening to the public on 22 September.

SUNKEN BATH PROJECT 1 Ground Floor Flat, 33 Dunlace Road, E5 0NF

The winner of the 2017 New London Architecture's Don't Move, Improve! Award, the refurbishment of this flat features a sunken bath that extends into the garden. Open 23 September.

HACKNEY TOWN HALL Mare Street, E8 1EA

A town hall has stood on this site in Mare Street since 1866. Its current incarnation, however, dates back to the 1937, and is one of London's finest examples of civic Art Deco architecture. Open 22-23 September.

GEFFRYE MUSEUM 136 Kingsland Road, E2 8EA

Already missing the Geffrye Museum following its temporary closure in January? Come and have a peek at the current state of its £18million renovations on 22 September.

Hackney

Hackney is one of the most diverse places in the UK. In this regular feature, we profile the borough's great & good or just plain interesting

hackneypeople

By Harriet Worsley

I GREW up in a family where you were not allowed to play music," says Hackney Carnival organiser Pax Nindi.

"In Zimbabwe at that time, every parent wanted their child to become a doctor and it was a shameful thing to admit that your child was becoming a musician."

Today, Pax's music career has earned him the title of 'Master of Roots African Reggae', but as a young boy he had to hide his passion. At night, he says: "I used to pray to the Lord, asking him to make me play the guitar like Jimi Hendrix."

Staying in Zimbabwe seemed to mean putting his dreams aside, so the young Pax decided to follow them across the world instead.

He recalls: "I did night shifts at a newspaper, processing photographs for their publication. While everyone else was out partying, I was saving all my money to travel to England."

He finally arrived in 1985, with £6,000 and a plan to make and market his own music.

Pax says: "My first shock was the cold. It was November. I was wearing a t-shirt and sandals. When you see the English snow on TV in Zimbabwe, it looks like it would be so nice to touch."

"All I'd seen of England on TV was London. I left the airport and tried to climb into a taxi with the address of an aunty."

"He said: 'you'd have to be very rich'. She lived in the north of England... in Middlesbrough. I just

Zimbabwe-born Pax Nindi organised carnivals across the UK before becoming Creative Director of the Hackney Carnival had no idea!"

Pax finally found his way to meet his aunty by train, but once he arrived more challenges awaited.

"Middlesbrough, at the time, was a very quiet place," he explains. "In the pubs, people would ask me if they could touch my hair. I was the only dread in the village."

London seemed his only choice, and so Pax made his way to the capital, 'sleeping on the Tube with tramps,' before finding work washing dishes and delivering newspapers, and doing a course in music production.

Pax says: "It took me a year to find my feet."

But find his feet he did. Pax founded a band called Harare Dread, and it really took off.

Pax says: "Within a year, we were getting reviews for our live shows and we were playing Glastonbury. We played at Notting

Hill Carnival and someone filmed us, but what he produced really wasn't what I wanted, so he handed over the footage.

"I'd never edited video before, but I learnt on the job. And then I got carried in that direction."

Pax founded Paxvision, and as a filmmaker produced and directed videos for groups including Heart n Soul and the Irie Dance Theatre Company.

"I was full of energy back then," he laughs.

"I was touring with the Hackney is a happening place. The different communities all come together to make it such a great place to work band, doing Paxvision, and acting as agent for Harare Dread... But then my partner and I started having babies, and it was difficult to juggle everything. My partner wanted me to get a proper job, so I reluctantly went to an interview at Arts Council England.

"I wore a Rasta hat, one red sock and one blue. Everyone else in the building wore suits. I was like an alien but I got the job and in the end, I stayed for 10 years."

He may have begun with mixed feelings, but as usual he threw himself into the role with passion.

"Carnival was not really seen as a proper art form then," he explains. "The only carnival getting money from the Arts Council was Notting Hill. I felt it was my duty to campaign to get it recognised."

He spent six months touring the country, speaking to carnival organisers in every corner, eventually writing the National Carnival Arts Strategy, publishing a book called 'On Route: The Art of the Carnival', and putting carnival arts firmly on the map in the UK.

In fact, carnival was to become a major part of his life. After leaving Arts Council England in 2006, he organised carnivals across the UK and the world. But, he says: "London is home and I really wanted to do something here."

So when he was asked to be Creative Director of the Hackney Carnival in 2014, 'it was a dream'.

Pax says: "Hackney is a happening place, a place where everything is always moving. The different communities – Jewish, African, Caribbean... they all come together to make it such a great place to work."

"Plus," he chuckles, "my kids are grown up now. So if they think Hackney is cool, so do I."

Pax puts the carnival's special atmosphere down to a number of things: "Very few carnivals are run by the local authority like this one," he explains.

"And the Council and community work really corroboratively together. We make sure that it's properly curated so no one gets drowned out – you can hear the African, and the Samba, and everything else that's happening. Plus, the residents really support it."

But his favourite part is closing the road around Hackney Town Hall.

Pax says: "That's what carnival is all about: taking your culture and your city to the streets, and celebrating it proudly."

PREVIEW

The Plague

Until 29 Sept, Arcola Theatre, E8 3DL

FOLLOWING last year's sold-out premiere, the electrifying production gets set for a revival at Dalston's Arcola Theatre.

Running for four weeks only, The Plague is a gripping story about living through a time of crisis and fighting back against despair. Originally written by Albert Camus, in the aftermath of the Nazis' march across Europe, the novel struck a powerful chord with millions struggling to understand the fascist 'plague' that had just overwhelmed them.

► For more info, visit: www.arcolatheatre.com

Now, as Europe slides again into uncertainty, this adaptation by Neil Bartlett retells Albert Camus' classic for our own dangerous times. Bartlett highlights an extraordinary moment where a character declares that when you live through a catastrophe, the thing you learn is that 'there is more to admire about people than to despise.' He says: "The sentence is a shocking one to hear. Can it possibly, in 2018, still be true? Camus cannot provide us with the answer to that question, but he does insist that we look it straight in the eye."

ART & EXHIBITIONS

SMILE PLEASE

Until 22 Sept, Wed-Sat,
12noon-6pm

Smile Please displays 'painted drawings' and rarely seen sculptural collections created by the artist Simon English between 2014 and 2018. Although English's work has been widely exhibited since the early 1990s, Smile Please will be the first UK presentation of his sculptural installations. Free. All ages. PEER, 97-99 Hoxton Street, N1 6QL. Info: 020 7739 8080; www.peeruk.org/simonenglish

THE GIFT OF A SKORT

15 Sept-6 Oct, Wed-Sat
11am-6pm

A solo exhibition of paintings, drawings and screen prints by up-and-coming London artist Joy Miessi, interpreting the theme of gender through a deeply personal lens. As with much of the artist's work, moments and memories are captured in abstract figures and written recollections. Free. All ages. Atom Gallery, 127 Green Lanes, N16 9DA. Info: 020 7354 8067; www.atomgallery.co.uk

HEIDI BUCHER

19 Sept-9 Dec, Tues-Sat
10am-6pm, Sun 12noon-5pm

Showing for the first time in a UK public institution 25 years after her death, this exhibition brings together a significant body of enigmatic latex works made during the last two decades of Swiss artist Heidi

Bucher's (1926-1993) life and includes screenings of films that document her at work. Free. All ages. Disabled access. Parasol Unit, 14 Wharf Road, Hoxton, N1 7RW. Info: Contact: Kirsteen Cairns. Info: 020 7490 7373; www.parasol-unit.org/whats-on/heidi-bucher/

NOT IN USE

20 Sept, 6pm-10pm

The anonymous artist, known as Skeleton Cardboard, gets set for a solo show at urban gallery, BSMT. His discarded pieces of cardboard skeletons, free for passers-by to admire or to take, have come a long way over the years, with the artist's work having evolved into a modern-day dictionary of symbols, tech jargon and disclaimers and in doing so it encapsulates a longing for the simple, analogue life of the past. Free. All ages. BSMT, 5D Stoke Newington Road, N16 8BH. Info: 07500 560 323; www.bsmt.co.uk

NEW PAINTINGS

13-18 Sept, 10am-5pm,
Fri-Tues

Emma Lilly's paintings are an exploration of the compulsive and intuitive act of doodling underpinned by an eclectic, personal borrowing of motifs and styles from art history and popular culture. Free. All ages. A-side B-side Gallery, 352 Mare Street, Hackney Central, E8 1HR. Info: 020 8533 7258; info@asidebsidegallery.com; www.asidebsidegallery.com/PR_Emma_Lilly.html

A Dance of Decadence

14-15 Sept, Stoke Newington Town Hall, N16

THE Little Orchestra's mission to make classical music in an unclassical setting. Accordingly, their latest performance sees Beethoven's 7th Symphony and excerpts from his opera Fidelio rebranded as 'A Dance of Decadence'.

Stoke Newington Town Hall will be decked out in sofas and dolled up with a pop-up bar serving booze and snacks. There's no dress code, and the conductor, Nicholas Little, will chat to the audience before the performance begins, highlighting some of the juicier stories about the composer and some of the key things to listen out for in his music.

Nicholas points out that in Beethoven's time: "You might go to a patron's house for a private soiree and they'd make music, and there'd be a social dimension to it."

The idea is to do the same, and attract new audiences. We think old ones will be won over too.

A Dance of Decadence takes place on 14 and 15 September at Stoke Newington Town Hall. Ticket range from £15 to £35. To find out more and to buy tickets, visit: tlo-beethoven-7.eventbrite.co.uk

Oscar? Bravo!

The Mayor was one of the grown-up winners picked by The Crib

TO SAY thank you to community leaders that support youth projects in Hackney, 12 young people came together to present the 'Hackney Oscars' to some of the grown-ups that inspire them the most.

The trophies were presented at the annual summer fun day at The Crib youth hub on 1 September.

The hub is for young people aged 10 to 18 based in De Beauvoir, but it welcomes attendees from across Hackney.

As well as having regular activities, it also hosts a youth forum, which decides on how the club is run.

It was this forum that came up with the idea for the awards and organised them as part of the club's summer fair.

“He is so real. You never get mayors that are always having fun with local people”

The four winners were: Cecilia Darker, owner of the Rosemary Branch theatre pub; Fiona Darbyshire, from the De Beauvoir Association; Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville; and De Beauvoir Tenants and Residents' Association (TRA), for contributing funds towards the scheme.

Whitney Oyeledun, 15, was excited about meeting Mayor Glanville. She said: “He is so real. You never get mayors that are always having fun with local people.”

Amy Lawrence, 10, was happy to say thank you to the De Beauvoir TRA, which had funded daily activities for young people throughout the summer.

She said: “The project has helped us make friends with new people.”

After watching the Mayor have a go on the bouncy castle she quipped: “and the Mayor is funny!”

News in brief

Google it, to take Advantage

HACKNEY students were part of a group of young people who were involved in a two-day programme designed to catapult them to success.

Called The Advantage Group (TAG), the programme was launched by Alvin Owusu-Fordwuo from Hackney, in conjunction with Google, with the aim of giving young people from low income families the chance to develop skills, as well as access to professional networks. The group of 28, all aged between 16 and 18, went to Google's London headquarters to take part in team building challenges on 13 August. The next day was spent at the Canada Water Culture Space, an arts venue where the students took part in a CV and communication workshop, financial literacy workshops and a panel event.

For more information, visit: www.theadvantagegrp.co.uk; email: info@theadvantagegroup.co.uk; or search @theadvantagegrp on Instagram and Twitter.

Next steps on the career path

THE Council hosted a careers festival to encourage and support young people aged 16 to 20 who are unsure about their next steps on the careers ladder.

Young people who attended the event on 30 August received one-to-one support and professional guidance from organisations, training providers and colleges including the NHS, the Council, BSix, New City College and WAC Arts.

If you are a young person who is still in need of support following exam results, email: Maxcine.Hill-Beattie@hackney.gov.uk

Actor stresses importance of positive environment

THE award-winning Manhood Academy joined the Council's Young Hackney service and Radio 1Xtra to host a thought-provoking event last month.

The Edge youth hub, in Woodberry Down, was the venue for an exclusive discussion on 29 August, which was part of Radio 1Xtra's 'Inspire ME Tour' series.

The tour aims to motivate and empower young people, aged 14 to 24, through the experiences shared by others of a similar age.

The discussion and Q&A panel was hosted by Radio 1Xtra presenter, Jeremiah Asimah.

Members of the panel included actor Aml Ameen, who appeared in Idris Elba's latest film 'Yardie', and Reggie Nelson, financial analyst, youth mentor and star of BBC Stories 'Hustle like Reggie'.

Jeremiah closed the evening by asking the panel: “How important is it to have the right people around you?”

The panel members were unanimous in their answers and stressed how significant it is to surround yourself with positive people.

Aml said: “Environment can be stronger than willpower, having the right people around you is so important.”

The Manhood Academy is a community-based programme committed to offering young men and boys mentoring and transformational workshops.

Sexual health in the City

The Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, and Deputy Mayor, Feryal Demirci, attended the official opening of the sexual health clinic in the City. Dr Penny Bevan, Director of Public Health for Hackney and City of London, and Tracey Fletcher, Chief Executive of Homerton University Hospital's NHS Trust, both pictured left, helped open the clinic

A NEW sexual health clinic has officially opened in the City of London.

The clinic, located at 80 Leadenhall Street, EC3A, was opened in a ribbon cutting ceremony attended by the Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, and Deputy Mayor and Cabinet member for Health, Social Care, Transport and Parks, Feryal Demirci.

It provides a number of sexual health services for Hackney and City residents – including testing for sexually transmitted diseases, administering PEP (a combination of HIV drugs that can stop the virus taking hold), family planning advice and treatments.

Cllr Demirci said: “The Mayor and I are really pleased to see the clinic officially open. It provides an essential service for Hackney residents living close to the City, giving them easier access to sexual health services and creates more flexibility and options for residents and City workers alike.”

The clinic, which began seeing patients in April, is open Monday to Saturday and offers early morning sessions, results on the same day for most tests, a full range of contraception,

“It provides an essential service for Hackney residents, giving them easier access to sexual health services” face-to-face advice and treatments, e-diagnosis and self-testing facilities.

It also provides services for residents in the City, as part of a network of sexual health services run by Homerton hospital for Hackney Council and City of London Corporation.

Dr Sarah Creighton, Consultant in Sexual Health/HIV at Homerton, said: “It took a few weeks to get established but the clinic is now fully operational.

“It has welcomed over 4,000 client visits in the first four months since its initial opening in April.”

News in brief

Have your say on care services

ADULT carers or residents who regularly provide help and assistance to someone else – like a member of the family, a friend or neighbour – are being asked to share their experiences and views on accessing services the Council provides to support them.

The consultation will be used to help improve services for people who look after family members, partners or friends in need of support. People who receive a ‘Carers Allowance’ can also take part. Residents can complete a questionnaire online: www.hackney.gov.uk/carers until 15 October.

They will also be entered into a prize draw to win a £50 Love2shop voucher.

To get a hard copy of the questionnaire, or to order it in another format or language, email: userengagement@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 4711.

Time to ask about asthma

HEALTHY London Partnership and NHS England London are launching a campaign called #AskAboutAsthma to help improve the lives of those living with asthma in the capital. The campaign coincides with children and young people returning to school.

One in 10 children and young people in London have asthma, but less than half of these have an asthma management plan or know how to use their inhaler correctly. The campaign aims to encourage children and young people with asthma to ask these three questions:

- Do I have an asthma management plan? This helps identify the right colour inhaler and dosage, and when to seek emergency help.
- Can I use my inhaler properly?
- Have I had my annual asthma review?

Woodland Place to be the space for wellbeing activities

A PROJECT to build a dynamic outdoor space for wellbeing activities is set to launch at Hackney City Farm next month.

Woodland Place received £13,426 from Postcode Local Trust, a charity funded by players of People's Postcode Lottery, to build an eco-friendly space in the farm's wooded area.

Workshops, including bread making, stick whittling and foraging are set to take place in the new pavilion.

Existing meditation, yoga and art groups will also use the space for classes.

The pavilion will be built from recycled or sustainable timber, featuring a roof made from Tetra Tiles.

In preparation for the build residents, volunteers and cafes are rinsing and collecting foil Tetra Paks for re-purposing into 1,200 tiles.

Caroline Baker, project coordinator said: “We look forward to welcoming volunteers to help transform this farm space to bring communities together.”

Volunteers are needed to help with the build from 1 to 14 October, with event planning set to take place on 8 and 11 October.

The launch is set to take place on 27 October.

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by residents and serve for four years. The last borough-wide elections took place in May 2018. Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee Council services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR PHILIP GLANVILLE

Hackney's executive Mayor Philip Glanville was directly elected by the borough in 2018. He is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. The Mayor holds monthly casework surgeries in the Town Hall. To book an appointment, e-mail: mayor@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 2212. Residents are first encouraged to contact their ward councillor. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney, who is chosen annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Clare Potter.

A healthy eating programme from Shoreditch Trust

www.shoreditchtrust.org.uk

SHOREDITCH Trust's Food For Life Programme works with members of the community to encourage affordable healthy eating, cooking skills and food knowledge.

Veggie bean chilli is a tasty affordable adaption of the beef version. Beans are a great source of slow release carbohydrate, protein and fibre, making them an excellent alternative to meat. If making a fully bean chilli feels like a step too far, you could try cutting the amount of beef in half and adding an extra tin of beans.

Chilli non-carne (veggie chilli)

Makes 4-6 portions

Preparation time
20 mins

Cooking time
20 mins

Ingredients

- 2 medium onions
- 3 cloves of garlic
- 2 medium carrots
- 2 sticks of celery
- 2 peppers (any colour)
- 1 tbsp tomato puree
- 1 tsp of chilli powder
- 1 tsp of ground cumin
- 1 tsp of ground coriander
- 1/2 tsp of ground cinnamon
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 400g tinned chickpeas
- 400g tinned red kidney beans
- 2 x 400g tinned chopped tomatoes
- 1 small bunch of coriander
- 1 lime
- 1 tbsp of olive oil
- Salt and pepper to season.

Method

- Peel and finely chop the onion, garlic, carrots and celery
- Add the oil to a large pan on medium high heat. Soften the onion, carrot and celery for 10 minutes. Once cooked through, add the garlic and cook for another 2 minutes
- Roughly chop the peppers and add with the tomato puree, tinned tomatoes, chilli powder, cumin, ground coriander, chopped coriander stalks, cinnamon and black pepper
- Pour in half a cup of water. Mash or blend a ¼ of the beans/chickpeas for texture. Add them all to the pan
- Bring to the boil and turn the heat down to a simmer with a lid for about 30 mins, stirring every now and again to stop it catching. If it becomes too dry add another splash of water
- When it is all cooked, sprinkle coriander leaves on top and serve with a wedge of lime.

Have your say on how to tackle inequality in Hackney

RESIDENTS are being asked to have their say on the Council's strategy to tackle inequality.

Hackney is a diverse and accepting borough, but recently it has undergone rapid growth and change, meaning there are often stark inequalities.

The Council has created a Single Equality Scheme to identify issues of discrimination and disadvantage and ensure services are run in a way that promotes cohesion. The Council is now asking residents for their feedback on the scheme.

The strategy will help inform how all services are delivered in the borough over the next decade.

The proposed Single Equality Scheme was created through conversations with residents. The draft strategy will look to concentrate on three objectives:

1. Increase prosperity for all and tackle poverty and socioeconomic disadvantage

2. Tackle disadvantage and discrimination that is linked to a protected characteristic (age, disability, gender, pregnancy & maternity, race, religion or belief, sexual orientation)
3. Build a cohesive and inclusive borough.

The Council is organising a series of focus groups for residents to have their say more in depth. Participants will be awarded a £20 voucher. The workshops take place on:

- Workshop for people who are trans and non-binary, 18 September, 7-8.30pm

- Workshop open to all residents, 20 September, 6.30-8pm

- Workshop for social housing tenants, 26 September, 7-8.30pm

- Workshop for people with learning difficulties, date and time tbc.

For more information on the workshops, or to have your say, visit: consultation.hackney.gov.uk; email: rachel.salmon@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 7732. The consultation closes on 30 September.
